Youth Adult Voluntary Foster Care

The Young Adult Voluntary Foster Care program allows youth in foster care, as they become legal adults, to voluntarily remain under state care until age 21 — if they are in school (high school, GED, vocational, or college), in job training, employed 80 hours per month, or are deemed incapable of participating in employment/education activities due to a documented medical condition.

The Youth Adult Voluntary Foster Care program allows for a variety of benefits to be extended to youth in transition, including:

- Extension of foster care payments
- Continued oversight by a caseworker and counseling
- Continued health care coverage
- More time to finish high school and/or pursue vocational or higher education

Young adults who qualify under the program have options in choosing living arrangements, including staying with their current foster parents, renting a home/apartment, even staying in a college dorm.

For more information, ask for the Youth Adult Voluntary Foster Care Liaison at your local MDHHS office, or visit:

Research Colleges:
You can research colleges that interest you through websites, your public library, or your high school counseling office. Some questions to consider:
- Does the college have a campus support program for students from foster care?
- Does the college have financial scholarships for students from foster care?
- Do you want to be near a big city? Midsize? Small? Rural? Urban?

Meet With Your Guidance Counselor:

- Ask about college fairs. These are events you can attend where many colleges provide presentations at once. A great way to learn about many schools at once.
- Attend a campus tour
- Ask about application fee and/or test waivers.
