Young Adult Voluntary Foster Care

The Young Adult Voluntary Foster Care program allows youth in foster care, as they become legal adults, to voluntarily remain under state care until age 21 -- if they are in school (high school, GED, vocational, or college), in job training, employed 80 hours per month, or are deemed incapable of participating in employment/education activities due to a documented medical condition.

The Young Adult Voluntary Foster Care program allows for a variety of benefits to be extended to youth in transition, including:

- Extension of foster care payments
- Continued oversight by a caseworker and counseling
- Continued health care coverage
- More time to finish high school and/or pursue vocational or higher education

Young adults who qualify under the program have options in choosing living arrangements, including staying with their current foster parent, renting a home/apartment, even staying in a college dorm.

For more information ask for the Young Adult Voluntary Foster Care Liaison at your local DHS office, or visit: www.michigan.gov/FosterCare1821.

Research Colleges

You can research colleges that interest you through websites, your public library, or your high school counseling office. Some questions to consider:

- Does the College have a campus support program for students from foster care?
- Does the College have financial scholarships for students from foster care?
- Do you want to be near a big city? Midsize? Small? Rural? Urban?

Meet with your Guidance Counselor

As early as you can in your Junior year, make an appointment to meet with your High School guidance counselor. Tell them you want to go to college or community college. Ask for their help in researching schools, applying for financial aid, taking tests (ACTs, PSATs, SATs) and completing applications. A few ideas:

- Ask about college fairs. These are events you can attend where many colleges provide presentations at once. A great way to learn about many schools at once.
- Attend a campus tour
- Ask about Application fee and/or test waivers.

Senior Year in High School

This is the year to make it happen! Complete your applications, Apply for Financial Aid, and pay attention to due dates and deadlines!

- Choose the schools you’re going to apply to.
  - Double check the due date deadlines and make sure you mail in your application before that date.
- Complete Applications
  - Ask about application fee waivers
  - Start your essay early, get letters of recommendation

Sophomore Year in High School
This year you will be making decisions about your classes and activities that will prepare you for college while building your resume and application.

- Explore your interests and potential careers.
  - Talk to your High School Counselor about Career services, and find out if there are ways to explore different careers at your school.
  - When you've found a couple of careers you're interested in, try to find some professionals you can talk to! Try calling a business or organization to ask for an informational interview, and ask:
    - How did you become interested in your field?
    - What did you major in or what credentials do you have?
    - Do you have any advice for me?

- Talk with supportive adults about their college/school experiences.
  - Examples of supportive adults include your case worker, foster family, biological family, teachers, guidance counselor, neighbors, and group leaders.

- Take AP classes in high school and other advanced level courses.
  - AP (Advanced Placement) and advanced level courses show colleges that you like to learn and you are willing to work hard. Classes like these can help your chances of being admitted.

- Participate in extra curricular activities.
  - Colleges like to see that you participate in your school and community, so now is the time to become involved in Leadership activities, sports, and volunteering. A great resource to explore is your local MYOI (Michigan Youth Opportunities Initiative):

Junior Year in High School
This year you will be educating yourself about colleges and preparing to apply! You will explore colleges and careers, begin taking exams, and talking to the supportive adults around you about how best to prepare for college!
